

Enneagram Types and Shifting Faith

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	The Reformer	The Helper	The Achiever	The Individualist	The Investigator	The Loyalist	The Enthusiast	The Challenger	The Peacemaker
Strongest feelings during faith shifts	Anger about the broken system	Fear of losing relationships	Desire to still feel valuable some how, some way	Depressed and longing to feel special and unique again	Driven to figure it out and make sense of it all	Anxiety and fear	Frenetic searching for something new	Pissed off at the whole damn thing	Discomfort with the dissonance
When it comes to faith systems, most mad about...	The lost integrity of what Jesus intended.	The way people are mistreated, unvalued, unloved, marginalized.	The inefficiencies and not-doing-it-the-way-it-could-be-dones.	The inauthenticity and hypocrisy of it all.	The brokenness of the systems and what could be.	The lack of clarity and consistency.	The lack of willingness to change and adapt.	Poor leadership and the hypocrisy underneath.	9's don't get mad and are always trying to see both sides until they get honest, ha ha.
When considering their shifting faith, really sad about...	Lost dream for the church and it will never really care and advocate for people the way it could and should.	Losing relationships, friendships, heart connections.	Losing being part of the winning team or at least a team that was trying to do something in the world.	Losing the chance to be part of something special and unique and God-infused.	Losing certainty and a chance to grow relationally with other people even though it's not first nature.	Losing safety and security of knowing the rules, the people, the how-to's.	Losing the high of religion, that other-world experience.	Losing self-respect, wondering how we could have given ourselves to the system for so long?	Losing the peace of security of being part of something good and holy.
Significant fear of....	Never finding something with enough integrity to belong again.	Never feeling loved and connected to community again.	Never mattering or being valued in a system again.	Never feeling special or unique to God or others again.	Never being able to make sense of it and never connecting to people.	Never feeling clear on things again.	Never feeling satisfied and content again.	Never trusting anyone again; it sounds good on the surface but inside, it's lonely.	Never fitting in and belonging again.
Still hope...	That the church would get its sh*t together.	To find a way to love people.	To find a way to matter.	To find a unique way to contribute to good.	To see God's kingdom come.	To find a way to be part.	To feel fulfilled somehow.	To defend and protect the weak and oppressed.	To feel peace and wholeness.
What we are saying to God in our heads and hearts....	Where is your justice?	Do you still love me? Please see my heart and how hard I'm trying!	See, I'm working my ass off to make this work!	I tried so hard to matter and look where it got me?	I will figure you out, one way or another.	Where are you? I need your support!	I tried you and look where it got me???	Forget you, I'm better off without you anyway.	Please don't be mad at me but I just can't play nice anymore.
Thoughts swirling around in our head...	Really, people, this is what you think church should be?	Will others still love me if I change or will they leave me?	I will not let the pain of all this loss win!	The system is so jacked up and I don't want to be part anymore anyway!	I will figure it out some how, some way. Me and God alone are enough.	What are the new rules?!? Can someone please tell me quick?	Damn, I miss the connection. How can I find that feeling another way?	I didn't need them anyway.	I have no idea what I actually want...
